TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 9, 1901.

MAN A TORCH IN MID-AIR.-George Devan, who gives an athletic performance in Sunbury, Pa., closing with a high dive into water after making a long slide on an inclined wire cable, ablaze with burning cotton, holding only by his teeth, while he goes through space at the rate of a hundred feet a second, was horribly burned in mid-air at that place Sunday night. He gave his usual athletic exhibition and prepared to give his "sensational high diva."

He covered almost his whole body with strand after strand of cotton sat-urated with coal oil. Thinking every-thing was secure the match was applied thing was secure the match was applied to the cotton, and he started on his perilous ride. Hardly had he gone fitty feet when he was brought to a standstill with a jerk, suspended in the air thirty feet with the cotton rapidly burning into his flash.

Had he gone a little farther he could have dropped into water, but under him was a big crowd.

With great presence of mind be climed hand over hand on the wire to the tree which was used as a support, and after reaching the tree before the burning material from his body and climbed to the ground.

Upon examination it was found that he was burned almost all over the body.
Three strands of the cable had become broken and made a knot in the wire,
which prevented the pulley from sliding
over it, thus causing the accident.
